Table of Contents

Introduction.

1. The Origin of Broca's Area and Its Connections from an Ancestral Working-Memory Network, Francisco Aboitiz, Ricardo García, Enzo Brunetti, and Conrado Bosman
2. A Multimodal Analysis of Structure and Function in Broca's region, Katrin Amunts and Karl Zilles
3. Broca's Area in the Human and the Non-human Primate Brain, Michael Petrides

Part 2: Matters Linguistic.

4. Weak Syntax, Sergey Avrutin
5. Speech Production in Broca's Agrammatic Aphasia: Syntactic Tree Pruning, Na'ama Friedmann
6. A Blueprint for a Brain Map of Syntax, Yosef Grodzinsky
7. Evaluating Deficit Patterns of Broca Aphasics in the Presence of High Inter Subject Variability, Dan Drai
8. Treating Language Deficits in Broca's Aphasia, Lewis P. Shapiro and Cynthia K. Thompson

Part 3: Motor Aspects and Sign Language.

11. The Role of Broca's Area in Sign Language, Karen Emmorey

Part 4: Psycholinguistic Investigation.

12. Broca's Area and Lexical-semantic Processing, Stefano F. Cappa and Daniela Perani
13. The Neural Basis of Sentence Processing: Inferior Frontal and Temporal Contributions, Angela D. Friederici
14. Involvement of the Left and Right Frontal Operculum in Speech and Nonspeech Perception and Production, Martin E. Meyer & Lutz Jäncke
15. On Broca, Brain and Binding, Peter Hagoort

Part 5: Historical Articles, Introduction.

17. Discussion,
18. Comments Regarding the Seat of the Faculty of Spoken Language, Followed by an Observation of Aphemia (Loss of Speech) Paul Broca (1824-1880), Translated by Yosef Grodzinsky from "Remarques sur le Siége de la Faculté du Langage Articulé, Suivies d'une Observation d'aphémie (Perte de la Parole)," in Bulletin de la Société Anatomique de Paris (1861)
19. On Affections of Speech from Disease of the Brain John Hughlings-Jackson (1835-1911) From Brain, 1, 304-330 (1878)
22. The Agrammatical Language Disturbance Arnold Pick (1854-1924), Translated by Yosef Grodzinsky from "Die agrammatischen Sprachstörungen," in Studien zur psychologischen Grundlegung der Aphasielehre (1913)
23. The Cytoarchitectonics of the Fields Constituting Broca's area L[othar?] Riegele, Translated by Yosef Grodzinsky from "Die Cytoarchitektonik der Felder der Broca'schen Region," in Journal für Psychologie und Neurologie, 42 (5), 496-514 (1931)