Table of Contents

Chapter 1. The continuing prospects for Chinese psychology
Chapter 2. What is Chinese about Chinese psychology and who are the Chinese in Chinese psychology?
Chapter 3. The cultured brain: Interplay of genes, brain, and culture
Chapter 4. Social and emotional development in Chinese children
Chapter 5. Parenting and child socialization in contemporary China
Chapter 6. Language and the brain: Computational and neuroanatomical perspectives from Chinese
Chapter 7. Language and literacy development in Chinese children
Chapter 8. Understanding reading disabilities in Chinese: From basic research to intervention
Chapter 9. Chinese bilingualism
Chapter 10. Chinese children learning mathematics: From home to school
Chapter 11. The thinking styles of Chinese people
Chapter 12. Approaches to learning and teaching by the Chinese
Chapter 13. Chinese students’ motivation and achievement
Chapter 14. How unique is Chinese emotion?
Chapter 15. Beliefs in Chinese societies
Chapter 16. The multiple frames of ‘Chinese’ values: From tradition to modernity and beyond
Chapter 17. What do we know about the Chinese self? Illustrations with self-esteem, self-efficacy, and self-enhancement
Chapter 18. From indigenous to cross-cultural personality: The case of the Chinese Personality Assessment Inventory
Chapter 19. Psychology and aging in the Land of the Panda
Chapter 20. Chinese well-being
Chapter 21. The spirituality of Chinese people
Chapter 22. Psychiatric disorders in the Chinese
Chapter 23. Clinical neuropsychology in China
Chapter 24. The tao (way) of Chinese coping
Chapter 25. Illness behaviors among the Chinese
Chapter 26. Community psychology in Chinese societies
Chapter 27. Psychotherapy with the Chinese: An update of the work in the last decade
Chapter 28. Face and morality in Confucian society
Chapter 29. Chinese cooperation and competition
Chapter 30. Interpersonal relationships in rapidly changing Chinese societies
Chapter 31. A gender perspective on Chinese social relationships and behavior
Chapter 32. Chinese cultural psychology and contemporary communication
Chapter 33. Chinese political psychology: Political participation in Chinese societies
Chapter 34. Chinese intergroup relations and social identity
Chapter 35. Developments in Chinese language: Paternalism and its elaboration, moderations, and alternatives
Chapter 36. Chinese consumer behavior: The effects of content, process, and language
Chapter 37. Chinese sports psychology
Chapter 38. Chinese acculturation and adaptation
Chapter 39. Inter-cultural interactions: The Chinese context
Chapter 40. On the distinctiveness of Chinese psychology: Or, are we all Chinese?

1. The continuing prospects for Chinese psychology, Geoffrey Blowers
2. What is Chinese about Chinese psychology and who are the Chinese in Chinese psychology?, Ying-Yi Hong, Yung-Jui Yang, and Chi-Yue Chiu
3. The cultured brain: Interplay of genes, brain, and culture, Farhan Ali and Trevor Penney
4. Social and emotional development in Chinese children, Xin-Yin Chen
5. Parenting and child socialization in contemporary China, Qian Wang and Lei Chang
6. Language and the brain: Computational and neuroanatomical perspectives from Chinese, Ping Li and Hua Shu
7. Language and literacy development in Chinese children, Catherine McBride-Chang, Dan Lin, Yui-Chi Fong, and Hua Shu
8. Understanding reading disabilities in Chinese: From basic research to intervention, Connie Suk-Han Ho
9. Chinese bilingualism, Him Cheung, Fong-Ha Yap and Virginia Yip
10. Chinese children learning mathematics: From home to school, Yu-Jing Ni, Ming Ming Chiu and Zi Juan Cheng
11. The thinking styles of Chinese people, Li-Jun Ji, Albert Lee, and Tieyuan Guo
12. Approaches to learning and teaching by the Chinese, David Kember and David Watkins
13. Chinese students’ motivation and achievement, K-T Hau and Irene T. Ho
14. How unique is Chinese emotion, Michelle Yik
15. Beliefs in Chinese societies, Kwok Leung
16. The multiple frames of ‘Chinese’ values: From tradition to modernity and beyond, Steve J. Kulich and Rui Zhang
17. What do we know about the Chinese self? Illustrations with self-esteem, self-efficacy, and self-enhancement, Virginia S.-Y. Kwan and James A. McGee
18. From indigenous to cross-cultural personality: The case of the Chinese Personality Assessment Inventory, Fanny M. Cheung and Shu-Fai Cheung
19. Psychology and aging in the Land of the Panda, Helene H. Fung and Sheung-Tak Cheng
20. Chinese well-being, Luo Lu
21. The spirituality of the Chinese people: A critical review, Daniel Shek
23. Clinical neuropsychology in China, Agnes S.-Y. Chan, Winnie W. Leung, and Mei-Chun Cheung
24. The tao (way) of Chinese coping, Cecilia Cheng, Barbara C. Y. Lo, and Jasmine H. M. Chio
25. Illness behaviors among the Chinese, Winnie W.-S. Mak and Sylvia Xiaohua Chen
27. Psychotherapy with the Chinese: An update of the work in the last decade, Wai-Sum Liu and Patrick W.-L. Leung
28. Face and morality in Confucian society, Kwang-Kuo Hwang and Kuei-Hsiang Han
29. Chinese cooperation and competition, Hildie Leung and Winton W.-T. Au
30. Interpersonal relationships in rapidly changing Chinese societies, Darius K.-S. Chan, Theresa Ng, and Chin-Ming Hui
31. A gender perspective on Chinese social relationships and behavior, Catherine So-kum Tang, Zhiren Chua, and Jiaqing O
32. Chinese cultural psychology and contemporary communication, Xu Shi and Bing Peng
33. Chinese political psychology: Political participation in Chinese societies, Isabel Wing-Chun Ng
34. Chinese intergroup relations and social identity, James Liu, Mei-Chih Li, and Xiao-Dong Yue
35. Developments in Chinese leadership: Paternalism and its elaborations, moderations, and alternatives, Chao C. Chen and Jiing-Lih Farh
36. Chinese consumer behavior: The effects of content, process and language, Robert S. Wyer, Jr. and Jiewen Hong
37. Chinese sports psychology, Gang-Yan Si, Hing-Chu Lee, and Chris Lonsdale
38. Chinese acculturation and adaptation, Colleen Ward and En-Yi Lin
39. David C. Thomas and Yuan Liao, Inter-cultural interactions: The Chinese context
40. Peter B. Smith, On the distinctiveness of Chinese psychology: Or, are we all Chinese?