Table of Contents

Foreword
Preface
Acknowledgements
Contributors
Abbreviations

SECTION 1 THE ETHNOMEDICINE OF ENERGY - A GLOBAL VIEW

1. Qi in Asian medicine
2. Flows and blockages in Rwandan ritual and notions of the body
3. Elemental souls and vernacular qi: some attributes of what moves us

SECTION 2 QI IN CHINESE MEDICINE

4. The anatomical foundations of qi
5. Qi in China's traditional medicine: the example of tuina
6. Qi cultivation in qigong and taiji quan
7. Qigong theory and research

SECTION 3 THEORY AND EXPERIMENT IN QI RESEARCH

8. The language of qi, quantum physics and the superimplicate body
9. Qi and the frequencies of bioelectricity
10. Systems theory: trapping and mapping healing with qi
11. The physiology of qi

SECTION 4 QI AND ENERGY MODALITIES IN CONTEMPORARY PRACTICE

12. Energy and medicine
13. What does it mean to practice an energy medicine?
13.1 Experiencing qi
13.2 Thinking about qi and acupuncture
14. Evidencing energy: experiences in acupuncture and therapeutic bodywork (zero balancing)
15. Eight modalities for working with qi: chakra acupuncture, with qigong, meditation and the five sources of energy
16. Ki in shiatsu
17. Bioelectricity and qi: a microcurrent approach
18. Energy psychology: working with mind-body synergy
19. Craniosacral biodynamics

SECTION 5 CLINICAL APPLICATIONS OF QI AND ENERGY-BASED MODALITIES

20. Qi in children
21. Qigong, taiji quan (tai chi) and HIV: the psychoneuroimmunology connection
22. Energy-based therapies in neurology: the example of Therapeutic Touch
23. Qi in chronic fatigue and fibromyalgia
24. The electrical heart: energy in cardiac health and disease

SECTION 6 CONCLUSION

25. Themes of qi and a dozen definitions: content analysis and discussion

Acknowledgements

Glossary: a vocabulary of qi

References

Index