Table of Contents

1. Symptomatology
2. Theories of stuttering
3. Prevalence and incidence
4. The person who stutters: central neurological findings
5. The person who stutters: motor abilities
6. The person who stutters: other physical findings
7. The person who stutters: personality
8. The person who stutters: cognitive and linguistic abilities
9. The person who stutters: developmental history and home environment
10. Stuttering as a response
11. Stuttering as a response: some controversial phenomena
12. Early stuttering and normal disfluency
13. Inferences and conclusions
14. Diagnosis and treatment Appendix: Results of Treatment References. Subject Index. Author Index